

Before or after your visit to the American Swedish Historical Museum, we encourage you to give your students additional context and a deeper understanding of New Sweden by using these films and educational materials developed by History Making Productions, one of our partner organizations.

A Lost World: 1600-1680 is the first installment in the Philadelphia: The Great Experiment series and can be viewed in full here.

Among the topics covered in the film are:

- The culture of the Lenape (presented with compelling reenactments)
- The rise and fall of the Dutch settlement of Swannendale
- The founding of New Sweden

Educational materials have been developed to accompany the film including:

- Introductory PowerPoint presentation (using materials from the Museum)
- Essential questions
- Key vocabulary
- “Watch along” note-taking sheets
- Suggested pause points
- Follow-up discussion questions
- Source analysis activities (using materials from the Museum)
- Answer keys for all activities
- Watercolors depicting Lenape life
- A list of “Shortcuts” for further study

To access these educational materials, click here

For more information, contact History Making Productions’ Director of Education, Amy Cohen amyc@historymakingproductions.com